'New Directions' Opens at SAC

By Val Van Meter
The Winchester Star

"New directions" is the theme of the photographic show opening this evening, from 6 to 9 p.m., at the David Holliday Gallery at the Shenandoah Arts Council in Winchester.

"We asked the photographers to submit a body of work representing a theme," said Ian Zuckerman, one of the judges for the juried show.

The artists could present up to 12 images. Zuckerman explained the theme was left up to them.

Should Barry Bonds Be Celebrated for Reaching Babe Ruth's Home Run Mark?

Yes, It's a Great Accomplishment

Zuckerman added.

“It’s interesting being on the other side,” said Zuckerman, who exhibited his photographs in the SAC’s show last year.

“I’m glad I had the opportunity to view other people’s work.”

For Zuckerman, who recently graduated from James Madison University with a degree in anthropology with an archaeology concentration, this was his first experience at judging. He worked with Shenandoah University student Erin Donovan and Geraldine Kiefer, assistant professor of art history at Shenandoah.

A major consideration with the judges was the strength of the theme through the body of the work, along with the technical base, composition and overall appeal, Zuckerman said.

Kiefer suggested the show spotlight contemporary photography.

Rather than “blockbuster” images, however, she felt the show should seek “thoughtful and meditative bodies of work.”

The Virginia photographers chosen for the show include Winchester’s Ting-Yu Chen (Surreality); Richmond’s Catherine D. Johnson (A Bridge Hidden by the Fog); Mount Sidney’s Maribeth Nolde, (In Celebration of Women); Norfolk’s Michael Preble (Other Views— Venice) and Waterford’s Mary Louise Ravese (Flowers)

Zuckerman said he was especially intrigued by Nolde’s work.

Waterford's Mary Ravese — (Flowers) women, along with items associated with their lives, attached to quilts.

“It was almost sculptural,” he said.

Zuckerman said he made an effort to get more students involved in the show this year, soliciting entries through art teachers at James Madison and Shepherd universities and Lord Fairfax Community College.

Students, he noted, “never have enough opportunities to exhibit their work.”

Running concurrently with the Shenandoah Photography III: New Directions show, will be an exhibit of work by the Lord Fairfax Community College faculty in the Kalbian-Harris Gallery.

Artists on exhibit include Janet Brome, adjunct professor of painting; Anne Currie, associate professor of painting, drawing, and mixed media; Christopher Stephens, adjunct professor of drawing and painting and Robin Teas, adjunct professor of ceramics, all from the Middletown campus and Barbara Heile, adjunct professor of drawing and painting, Warrenton campus.

The public is invited to view the shows, which are on display until July 1 at 811 S. Loudoun St., Winchester. Gallery hours are 11 a.m. to 2 p.m, Tuesday through Thursday and 11 a.m. to 3 p.m., Friday and Saturday. Call 667-5166.
